#MakeitOpen

Do you want to place schools at the centre of local communities while fostering students' 21st century skills? The Make it Open project can help.

The goal of Make it Open is to develop a sustainable infrastructure of Open Schooling in Europe based on the approach, pedagogy, content, processes, and tools of the maker movement.

Make it Open supports schools and local communities to develop new partnerships around science learning. This expands opportunities for different groups in society to engage with science.

THE PROJECT'S MAIN OBJECTIVES:

- Positioning schools at the center of community wellbeing
- Introducing maker education and citizen science as a transformative approach for Open Schooling
- Increasing the level of scientific literacy and interest in science of students and parents
- Mainstreaming Open Schooling

What is Open Schooling?

Open Schooling is an approach in which schools collaborate with their communities. Families, experts, and other stakeholders work with teachers and students to address local challenges, contribute to community development, and promote active citizenship.

Open Schooling offers students the opportunity to learn in the real world, from people other than their teachers.

Open schools engage with local interest groups and/or professional networks. Such schools become hubs at the heart of their communities.

ACTIONS ALREADY COMPLETED:

Co-created 16 Learning Scenarios with 8 pilot schools in the UK, Israel, Netherlands and Poland. These Learning Scenarios showcase how Open Schooling brings schools and communities together to work towards a common goal.
